

I have been informed that the FCC is considering a proposal that would limit the Indiana Telephone Privacy provisions. Please DO NOT do so. The Indiana Telephone Privacy Law has enabled my family to eliminate the numerous telephone calls we were receiving without having to subscribe to special phone deals or to purchase special equipment. My wife's family lives over-seas and whenever our phone would ring she would be concerned that it was bad news about her father who is in bad health. Before the Indiana law was enacted this was a common occurrence. What was especially bad were the calls we that disconnected after answering, due to computer generated calls to identify those numbers where people were in residence. These hang-up calls were always followed by a series of additional calls from telemarketers, keeping my wife in a nervous state. This has not been a problem since the Indiana law. We are now able to relax at home with only those calls we want.
